To Our Readers

“Sangha” usually refers to a spiritual community that has to do with a particular tradition or religion. To me, real sangha is whatever is in service to the silence of the heart—wherever it shows up. ~ Adyashanti

Here at Open Gate Sangha, as we support Adyashanti’s teachings, we quite naturally support the sangha as it moves and appears in its various forms. These forms always seem to be both deepening and widening, including people from North and South America, Europe, Asia, and Australia.

In our effort to make Adyashanti’s teachings more accessible, we have just launched our dynamic new website, adyashanti.org. Many thanks to everyone who has been involved in this exciting collaboration.

Although Adyashanti cannot travel everywhere and not everyone can make it to one of his live events, it is possible to hear his words, see him speak, or read one of his articles through our new website. Go to the Teachings area for free downloads or visit the Bookstore, where you can now purchase books, videos, and audiotapes online.

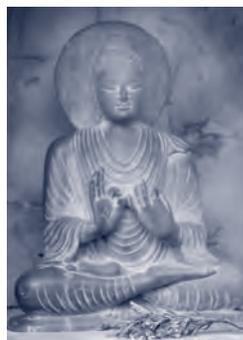

If you feel called to attend an event with Adyashanti, visit our new website for up-to-date information about Adyashanti’s schedule. Visit the Calendar page to get a quick overview, the Events area to find out about Satsangs, Intensives, or Silent Retreats, and the Travels section to see if he will be teaching in an area near you.

We hope you will enjoy this new offering. As always, feel free to join us anywhere, anytime, “in service to the silence of the heart.”

Love to you all,

Jerilyn Munyon
Executive Director
Open Gate Sangha

BAY AREA INTENSIVES

Weekend intensives are an opportunity to spend time in deep silence and inquiry with Adyashanti and the sangha. Each day will include periods of silent meditation and satsang. Adyashanti will give talks exploring various aspects of spiritual awakening and living an awakened life. Talks are typically followed by question-and-answer periods. Please join us and bring your innermost questions or simply sit in the silence and presence of eternal truth.

Adyashanti with his wife, Annie.

The Flame of Relationship

This intensive will be given jointly by Adyashanti and his wife, Annie.

Humanity's greatest challenge is to love without limitations, to love another as oneself—not in theory, but in actuality. This love is the realization of oneness as it moves in relationship. It expresses itself as a deep intelligence and wisdom that is not confined to one's personal conditioning. Join us for this exploration of life's greatest mystery.

Readiness—The Key to Freedom

Readiness is the key to awakening. Anyone can have a glimpse of awakening, but only those who are ready for it will remain awake. Readiness means that we are no longer addicted to attachment, desire, and aversion. It means that we are truly willing to perceive and live from a completely new paradigm. It means that the truth is more important than anything else in life.

*L*ife, the essence, totally transcends any of its forms. And yet, in the absolute transcendence of its forms, life also totally embraces all of its forms. So how could life, how could essence, not be in absolute love with all of its forms? That's the beauty of transcendence. The embrace is so full and rich.

Sangha News and Gratitude

☞ The recent East Coast tour—Adyashanti's first visit east of the Rockies—attracted people from as far as Vancouver and the Netherlands! Many thanks to the volunteer event coordinators at all of Adya's travel events for their extra efforts to accommodate the growing numbers of people. This fall, Adya will teach for the first time in Boulder, Colorado and Camden, Maine, as well as Omega Institute in New York. We look forward to meeting newcomers from these areas.

☞ Last October, during his East Coast tour, Adyashanti visited Insight Meditation Society in Barre, MA. His talk was warmly received by a completely packed room, including most of the IMS staff and a few teachers. IMS cofounder Joseph Goldstein also hosted Adyashanti for lunch and a tour of IMS's new 160-acre self-retreat center, the Forest Refuge.

☞ Our sangha was delighted to have a representative from Sounds True audio publishing company at Adyashanti's silent retreat in early November of last year. Talks from this retreat are included in the new CD album from Sounds True entitled "Spontaneous Awakening."

☞ Nancy Clark has recently joined our office staff in the accounting department. Nancy, who enjoyed ironing dollar bills as a child, is now helping us "smooth out" our day-to-day financial activity. Welcome, Nancy!

☞ Service can be an expression of truth anywhere in our lives. Open Gate Sangha does what it can to provide opportunities for service through volunteering. Many thanks to Eric Schneider for serving as Retreat Manager for two years. Working with Eric to develop his role helped pave the way for a new wave of event management volunteers. We now have two retreat managers, two intensive managers, two satsang liaisons, and two travel event liaisons! Deep bows to these volunteers for their willingness and heartfelt dedication.

☞ We continue to be amazed at the sincerity and talent of the many people who volunteer their time for Open Gate Sangha. A special thanks to the bookstore crew for all of their extra efforts as we transition to our online ordering system. Additional thanks to those helping to implement the online registration processes.

Touching One Life at a Time

During silent retreats, Adyashanti often shares letters written to him by the participants. The following is an excerpt from one such letter. We asked Lairy from Orinda, CA for permission to share it with you. An excerpt from Adya's response is included.

Dear Adya,

This retreat represents an anniversary of sorts, as it was last September, while on retreat with you, that a profound change in the awareness that knew itself as Lairy seemed to occur, shattering the dream of "me."

Last September during satsang, I became aware of a core belief regarding fear, and failure, and survival strategies that created this imagined identity, facilitating a seeing that penetrated and imploded this dream of "me." The seemingly dramatic experience alternated between terror, disorientation, bliss, and an intense explosion of psychophysical bodily energy, for the better part of two months.

Ten days after the retreat while sitting and observing my feet, not recognizing them as mine, a single thought came, "Nice feet," and in that moment everything stopped. Stillness made itself known in a most profound way. The first sense was, "I know this." And instantly all the moments over the last thirty years when the stillness had shown up were remembered, recognized, and realized. Nothing was happening. There was no experience, just perfect stillness. It seemed as if all of creation—past, present, and future—was only brought into existence to facilitate pure beingness revealing itself to itself in that moment.

It's been quite an unfolding, unraveling, undoing over the last year. Witnessing the bright quietness of this beingness outshining the lingering patterns of "me" has been and continues to be remarkable. The relationship awareness has with experience now is amazing. Experience is still arising as conditions, but it's not happening to "me." It's as though someone turned up the volume of this silence.

And then there is this gratitude, this love. The sense is of receiving an incomprehensible gift. The giver and the receiver are the same, and still there is a movement to experience this beingness on a human level.

I don't know who this letter is about; I don't know who you are—only this feeling of deep gratitude and appreciation for how this beingness made itself known through or as the wisdom that is you.

Heart deep,

Lairy

Thank you, Lairy. The truth is that this awakening is a mysterious thing. There isn't a "how to"; it just happens.

My job is simply to hammer away relentlessly and ruthlessly at your ideas about yourself. Something inside all of us knows the truth of what we really are. Something in us knows. You don't know how it knows, but something in you knows, and when its time is right, it starts to reveal itself. And something within us knows the fiction of who we have believed ourselves to be. Whatever the identity—good, bad, worthy, unworthy, smart, stupid—it starts to crumble and fall down. When its time is right it just falls apart.

When this happens, there's a great tendency to try to put it back together, because it can be quite disorienting, quite strange. You may be wondering why you feel disoriented or your body energies are going wacko, or you can't sleep at night for six months, or you have strange bouts of anxiety, followed by strange bouts of bliss. The mind may try to figure it out, put it back together. But your mind can't make sense of this coming unglued, the fiction of you breaking apart at the seams.

The beauty is, as you wrote at one point in your letter, Lairy, "You come to trust how everything resolves itself." This process knows what it's doing. It knows what it's doing much better than I know what it's doing, and much better than you know what it's doing. To wake up to this stillness is a gift.

~Adyashanti

You Are the Buddha

by Adyashanti

Recently discovered in an old file, the following talk was written by Adyashanti in preparation for the first silent retreat he taught, in July 1997.

Starting right now, this moment, I am asking you to become the Buddha. I am asking you to take your stand, to stand absolutely firm in your intention to awaken to the Truth of your Self.

This is what the Buddha did. He didn't say, "I'll try." He didn't say, "I hope I'll find the Truth." He didn't say, "I'll do my best." He didn't say, "If not in this lifetime, then maybe next lifetime." He came to the point where he didn't look for anyone else to tell him the Truth or show him the Truth. He came to the point where he took it all on himself. He sat alone under the Bodhi Tree and vowed never to give up until the Truth be realized.

Stop pretending to be someone, or something.

The power of this very simple, yet unshakable intention and absolute stand to be liberated in this lifetime propelled him to awaken to the simple fact that he and all beings are liberated—that all beings are freedom itself. Pure awakeness.

The Buddha was no different from you. No different. That is why he serves as a good model, because he was as you are now. So don't worship the Buddha. Don't put him on a pedestal. Don't even look up to him. Become him. Have the same intentions, take the same stand. Be the Buddha now! Put an end to all delaying, to all excuses, to all bowing down to saintly figures of the past or present. Stand up!

You are the Buddha! You are freedom itself! Stop dreaming your dream! Stop pretending that you are in bondage—stop telling yourself that lie! Stop pretending to be someone, or something! You are no one, you are no-thing! You are not this body or this mind. This body and mind exist within who and what you are. You are pure consciousness, already free, awake, and liberated. Stand up and walk out of your dream. I am here to say that you can do this.

Step out of the dream of your concepts and ideas. Step out of the dream of what you imagine enlightenment to be. Step out of the dream of who you think you are. Step out of the dream of everything you have ever known. Step out of your dream of being a deluded person. Stop telling yourself those lies and dreaming those dreams. Step out of all of that. You can do it. Nothing is holding you back. There are no requirements and no prerequisites to awaken. There is nothing to be done, nothing to think, nowhere to go.

Just stop all dreaming. Stop all doing. Stop all excuses. Just stop and be still. Effortlessly be still. Grace will do the rest.

At each and every moment from here on out, have the intention to directly experience Truth, your true liberated Self. Don't think about the Truth—directly return to your experience here, now, moment to moment. Experience Truth. Experience your Self. Dive into your experience. Your experience! Your experience of hearing, of seeing, of tasting, of breathing, of your heart beating, of your feet touching the floor, of the birds, of the wind.

Experience the vastness of who you are. Experience the freedom of who you are. You are the Buddha—experience that. You are the Buddha.

Adya's Mail

I receive many, many wonderful letters each week from all over the country. Unfortunately, I only have the time to respond to a small fraction of them. For all of you who have written me and will write me in the future, please know that I read every letter and truly enjoy sharing in your unfolding into Truth.

Many Blessings,

SILENT RETREATS

These retreats are for serious seekers of eternal truth. They are an opportunity to put your separateness on hold and discover the liberating truth of what you are. Be forewarned, these retreats can be disrupting to your beliefs and disorienting to your ego. . . . Welcome to the world of spiritual enlightenment.*

~ Adyashanti

Adyashanti's retreats have become known as profoundly liberating events that open the heart of realization and true understanding. Adyashanti structures these retreats to provide a powerfully dynamic environment of profound silence and intimate satsang. Serious spiritual seekers are both nurtured and challenged to dive deeply into themselves. The schedule of daily activities includes several periods of meditation, satsangs, and yoga or stretching. Outside of satsangs, these retreats are held in silence.

Silence is the final and ultimate teacher and the final and ultimate teaching.

After fifteen years of Zen practice and a series of ever-deepening realizations, Adyashanti was asked to teach by his Zen teacher. Since then, many spiritual seekers have awakened to their true nature while spending time with Adyashanti.

His unique expression of the living truth emerges spontaneously from emptiness, free of any tradition or ideology. Adyashanti's non-dual teachings have been compared to those of the early Zen masters and Advaita Vedanta sages. Adyashanti lives with his wife, Annie, in his native San Francisco Bay Area.

The Open Gate Sangha organization supports the teachings of Adyashanti by making them available to all who sincerely yearn for peace and freedom. Founded in 1996, the organization is run by a small staff and many dedicated volunteers, who form the heart of this growing community.
